

How Tweet It Is – Social Media in the Workplace

The firm's Employment Law group conducted a Webinar in June entitled "How Tweet It Is – Social Media in the Workplace."

The presentation generated considerable interest from employers concerned that their current employment policies, practices and procedures are not keeping up with the ever-changing social media world, potentially leaving them vulnerable to lawsuits or the risk of governmental action. The webinar examined the latest developments and short-term future of social media and provided participants with useful tips on social media policy drafting.
